OFFICER POSTING	DALE HOLLINGSWORTH	7/10/2025	7/10/2025	On July 10, 2025, at 1549 hours I posted the Notice of Violation and Public Hearing to the front door. Photo taken for documentation and Affidavit of Posting completed and signed. Upon posting, I knocked on the door, seeing a vehicle in the driveway. I was met by a female identifying herself as "Brenda." Brenda advised she is not the owner of the home, but does reside there with the owner. I explained the contents of the notice including the violations, how to abate, the compliance date, the date and time of hearing, and the location of the hearing. When explaining about the chickens, I expressed that we were aware there were possibly 10 chickens in the rear yard which she immediately denied the specific number 10. I replied that we have already confirmed at least 9, which she then agreed to. She also stated the chicken coop was a legitimate coop but needed repairs. She took the notice and advised she will provide it to the owner of the home when she returns from work that afternoon.

COMPLIANCE	RDH	7/25/2025	7/25/2025	NON COMPLIANT			On Friday 07/25/2025 I met with the property owner for a walk-through of the property. The inspections revealed great progress and abatement of all violations with the exception of the pool. The owner reportedly has a pool company coming this same day to treat the pool to cure this violation and then will reach back out for final inspection. I informed her if all violations are abated prior to the hearing, I will close the case without prosecution. Additionally, I was very clear that if any of the same violations re-occur again, we will proceed to prosecution regardless of compliance status after notification pursuant to allowances in FSS Chapter 162.

INITIAL	RDH	6/17/2025	6/17/2025	NON COMPLIANT	extensive complaint history regarding this location, including 5 code enforcement cases since 2021. Historically, the violations have been unfounded due to a privacy fence along the sides of the rear yard blocking inspectors' views. On this date, I responded and observed the front lawn mowed, and no clear violations at the front; however, I determine behind the residence was a City of Ocala owed DRA (drainage retention area). I legally accessed the DRA as an attempt to determine whether violations would be clearly visible from this vantage point where I had legal right to be. Once directly behind the subject property, I observed grey tarps secured to the city-owned chain-link fence on the inside of said fence. With clear gaps between the tarps, I could already see overgrowth and some chickens moving about in the rear yard. I also observed a dead tree leaning from the rear yard across the city-owned chain-link fence. There was also a separate blue tarp that was hanging on the city-owned chain-link fence; however, this tarp was not secured in the same manner as the grey tarps and was only secured by the metal of the chain-link stabbing through the tarp material itself. It was also blowing freely in the wind. Additional staff on site made contact with Brian Herrick, the City's Stormwater Systems Manager in charge of DRA property maintenance, who advise the tarps were not allowed to be on the fence and would make contact with the resident to afford them opportunity to remove the grey tarps within their yard. With the blue tarp freely blowing and getting caught on the fence, I was able to clearly view into the rear yard of this property through the city fence. This revealed significant overgrowth throughout the entire back yard. Additionally, the pool didn't appear to be

					maintained at all, containing nearly black water and no flow, indicating the pool pumps were not active at the time of inspection. Chickens were also present, and a count revealed nine (9) chickens present. The make-shift coop was also clearly visible near a side fence but was completely covered in torn grey tarps. It did appear a "doorway" area was present allowing chickens to come and go, with one chicken observed exiting the coop. It is unknown whether more chickens were inside that would bring the total number of chickens in excess of nine (9). It also appeared portions of the coop was constructed with plastic pet gates, indicating the coop may not be predator resistant due to what I believe to be a clear lack of maintenance, violating city ordinances. A chicken permit remains active for this location (CKN23-0014) which was issued 10/23/2023. City ordinance allows for inspection of the premises up to twice per year pursuant to this permit; therefore, I attempted contact at the front door to request this inspection but was met with no answer. An additional item to note was the front door was missing the doorknob; however, there is an active issued building permit for replacement of an exterior door. Due to no contact and the health concerns noted during inspection, I am preparing a Notice of Violation and Public Hearing, scheduling a hearing for the next available hearing date of July 10th, 2025, at 5:30pm. The notice will be posted to the property in addition to sending via certified mail and posting to City Hall's online kiosk.
